How did a farmer come to create a spiritual sanctuary? This book is the story behind the creation of Pathways Spiritual Sanctuary on a ranch in the Black Hills of South Dakota. An unlikely story that begins in a tin shed called the Turkey Shack.

_____ Author's Preface: I'm a guy who wears Carhartt jeans, with pliers in the pocket. I also was the CEO of a $65 million agribusiness and the Executive Director of a $100 million-plus science research laboratory during its startup. Along the way I had spiritual experiences that mystified me. I didn't shave my head, don robes or join an ashram. My life continued, but it was changed. In 2010, I created Pathways Spiritual Sanctuary on my ranch in the Black Hills of South Dakota. Based on my history, you might think I'm an unlikely person to create a spiritual sanctuary, so let me tell you up front what I am not. I am not a guru. I am not a psychologist, philosopher, theologian or a person with a degree in any field that would seem relevant to spirituality. I do have bachelor's and master's degrees, but in agricultural economics. I remain the guy in Carhartts, a Nebraska farm kid, who happened to have some extraordinary experiences that allowed me to see a new world of love, compassion, tolerance and forgiveness. This book is the story of that journey--a story that begins in a tin shed called the Turkey Shack. Dave Snyder Founder Pathways Spiritual Sanctuary

Our Journey of Love, 5 Steps to Navigate Your Caregiving Journey shares the lessons, tips & tricks learned over the past thirty years in roles of caregiving. Sue Ryan's journey began with her feeling like she was on an emotional roller coaster-often blindfolded-and not knowing what to expect next. She didn't know anything about the disease or caregiving. She constantly felt overwhelmed. She felt like she was missing something. Sue was disappointed in herself because she felt like she should be able to do more for the person receiving the specialized care she was providing. She was exhausted mentally, physically and emotionally. She lost who she was in giving care. She was only surviving. She didn't like the disease. She didn't like what it was doing to her care receiver, to her, and to those around them. She didn't like how she felt, so she began to learn. Now, instead of feeling helpless and overwhelmed, she feels balanced, filled with hope and love. Our Journey of Love: 5 Steps to Navigate Your Caregiving Journey, is written to help everyone in roles of care support positively navigate their journey, the journey of their care receiver, and the journeys of those who support them. Through the massive acceptance and radical presence learned along this journey, Sue embraces each insight with an open mind. She's learned the value of self-care and how using it creates a better experience for her care receiver and for her. She gives you guidance about what she's learned in many areas including identifying caregiving roles with clarity, making it easier to handle frustrations (including friends stepping away), creating more positive experiences for you and your care receiver, reducing stress and eliminating overwhelm, having the hard conversations we would rather not have. Our Journey of Love: 5 Steps to Navigate Your Caregiving Journey, is written in the first person to clearly reflect sharing Sue' story, not to tell you what you need to do. You are invited to consider what Sue has learned, both what has and what has not worked for her.

Setting out to visit a loved one, a child curiously asks a fellow commuter, "Who are you going to visit?" In answer to this simple question, the child learns about the love and loss in the life of a stranger: a father who lives apart from his small daughter, a husband who has lost his wife, a granddaughter who is forgotten by her grandfather, and a mother who fears for her son's recovery. After each conversation, the child understands that the other commuters have someone in their lives that they love "as much as I love you," and it is this understanding that allows the child to explore the most universal of human experiences: the power of love in the many different forms that it can take. Visiting You also explores a sense of community. Under her mother's supervision, a young child reaches out and connects with the people around them; they're not scared of strangers, or people who might 'look' scary, or people who are different to them. Sometimes it can take conscious decision and determination to look past outward appearances. Visiting You encourages us to find the similarities between people instead of focusing on differences, to recognize some part of ourselves in the life of a stranger.

Nicky Bell, diagnosed with Ewing's Sarcoma at age thirteen, died five years later, with his mother and best friend at his side. A Journey of Unconditional Love tells Nicky and Michele's story, describing the battle with cancer in great detail. However, this book is about more than cancer and its treatment and the fight to survive. It's about more than a mother and her son who had to face his mortality at such a young age and the despair and anguish that comes in losing that fight. It's about more than death . . . This book is about life. It's about how this mother and son approached the everyday moments of life despite the greater story that was playing out around them and was outside of their control. It's about what each had learned from the other and the influential roles played in their life experiences. It is about how it still affects the life of the one left behind. It's about the depth of human spirit and the soul's ultimate survival, along with what the survivor is supposed to do with that energy. The connection between this mother and her son has lived on long after his passing, and it continues to be a force in this mother's life every day. The inspiration in this story comes from the millions of small everyday moments, the choices made, the words spoken, and the unconditional love that makes such a seemingly senseless experience somehow
