

Ajanta Murals: An Album Of Eighty Five Reproductions In Colour Illustrated Text By Ingrid Aall And Others Photographs By S G Tiwari Edited By A Ghosh

This book uses gender as a framework to offer unique insights into the socio-cultural foundations of Buddhism. Moving away from dominant discourses that discuss women as a single monolithic, homogenous category—thus rendering them invisible within the broader religious discourse—this monograph examines their sustained role in the larger context of South Asian Buddhism and reaffirms their agency. It highlights the multiple roles played by women as patrons, practitioners, lay and monastic members, etc. within Buddhism. The volume also investigates the individual experiences of the members, and their equations and relationships at different levels—with the Samgha at large, with their own respective Bhik?u or Bhik?un? Sangha, with the laity, and with members of the same gender (both lay and monastic). It rereads, reconfigures and reassesses historical data in order to arrive at a new understanding of Buddhism and the social matrix within which it developed and flourished. Bringing together archaeological, epigraphic, art historical, literary as well as ethnographic data, this volume will be of interest to researchers and scholars of Buddhism, gender studies, ancient Indian history, religion, and South Asian studies.

Lady Herringham arrived on the Edwardian art scene with a translation of Il Libro dell' Arte o Trattato della Pittura, Cennini's fifteenth-century handbook on fresco and tempera. It aroused new interest in those techniques and led to the founding of the Society of Painters in Tempera in 1901. To preserve Britain's art heritage from buyers abroad, she provided the money that launched the National Art Collections Fund in 1903, creating what is still a vital and authoritative voice in Britain's cultural life. Her work as the only woman on the NACF's first executive committee prepared her to assist in founding the India Society, which urged respect for indigenous Indian traditions of the fine arts and encouraged appreciation for them in England.

Some of the world's most beautiful frescos and sculptures- Buddhist, Hindu and Jain- are found here. Beautiful photographs capture the richness of an ancient ethos.

To scholars in the field, the need for an up-to-date overview of the art of South Asia has been apparent for decades. Although many regional and dynastic genres of Indic art are fairly well understood, the broad, overall representation of India's centuries of splendor has been lacking. The Art of Ancient India is the result of the author's aim to provide such a synthesis. Noted expert Sherman E. Lee has commented: "Not since Coomaraswamy's History of Indian and Indonesian Art (1927) has there been a survey of such completeness." Indeed, this work restudies and reevaluates every frontier of ancient Indic art _ from its prehistoric roots up to the period of Muslim rule, from the Himalayan north to the tropical south, and from the earliest extant writing through the most modern scholarship on the subject. This dynamic survey-generously complemented with 775 illustrations, including 48 in full color and numerous architectural ground plans, and detailed maps and fine drawings, and further enhanced by its guide to Sanskrit, copious notes, extensive bibliography, and glossary of South Asian art terms-is the most comprehensive and most fully illustrated study of South Asian art available. The works and monuments included in this volume have been selected not only for their artistic merit but also in order to both provide general coverage and include transitional works that furnish the key to an all encompassing view of the art. An outstanding portrayal of ancient India's highest intellectual and technical achievements, this volume is written for many audiences: scholars, for whom it provides an up-to-date background against which to examine their own areas of study; teachers and students of college level, for whom it supplies a complete summary of and a resource for their own deeper investigations into Indic art; and curious readers, for whom it gives a broad-based introduction to this fascinating area of world art.

Mr. G. M. Solegaonkar was a unique artist, who had the courage to leave aside the life of a successful and renowned artist, to pursue his research. He got his share of laurels in his early age - but that was not enough to bind him to the world. He spent years studying the murals of Ajanta and Bagh caves in India, where he could assimilate the science behind the beauty of these ancient works. These efforts reflected in each of his work - in a unique way. This book is an album of some of his chosen paintings. Visit <http://hermitofajanta.com> for more information.

The Ajanta Caves

Il sito archeologico di Ajanta, nello stato indiano del Maharashtra, è composto da cinque templi e ventiquattro monasteri buddhisti, scavati nella parete rocciosa della valle del fiume Waghora a partire dal .C. Dopo essere stati per secoli un centro di vitale spiritualità, i santuari vennero poi abbandonati intorno al 650 d.C. e gradualmente dimenticati fino a quando, nel 1819, furono riscoperti fortuitamente durante una spedizione inglese di caccia alla tigre. Inserito nella Lista del Patrimonio Mondiale dell'UNESCO, il complesso di Ajanta è considerato, con il suo tesoro di pittura e scultura, un eccezionale repertorio delle origini e dell'evoluzione dell'arte classica indiana. La tradizione italiana in materia di restauro e conservazione ha reso l'Istituto Superiore per la Conservazione ed il Restauro di Roma l'interlocutore ideale per un progetto di cooperazione internazionale finalizzato allo studio della tutela e della conservazione delle pitture della grotta 17, valutando le evidenze scientifiche, esaminando i dati storici e gli elementi culturali. L'interdisciplinarietà a cui si ispira il metodo di ricerca dell'ISCR ha garantito il dialogo tra le diverse competenze. In questi due volumi i risultati delle indagini sono stati raccolti e documentati da un ricco apparato di immagini, per presentare finalmente un quadro completo e aggiornato sulle condizioni ambientali, sui materiali costitutivi e sullo stato di conservazione delle pitture murali e per indicare nuove direzioni per il futuro del restauro ad Ajanta. The archaeological site of Ajanta in the Indian state of Maharashtra is made up of five temples and twenty-four Buddhist monasteries, hewn in the rock wall of the Waghora river valley. Their construction dates back to about 200 BC and the shrines were a focus of spirituality for centuries. Then, around 650 AD they were abandoned and gradually forgotten, until they were rediscovered by a British tiger-hunting expedition in 1819. Today, the Ajanta complex is a UNESCO world heritage site and, with its treasure of paintings and sculptures, is considered an exceptional repertory of the origins and evolution of classical Indian art. In choosing the ideal interlocutor for a project of international cooperation, the Italian tradition of restoring works of art made the Rome-based Higher Institute for Conservation and Restoration (ISCR) the ideal choice. The aim of the project is to study and safeguard the paintings in cave number 17, assessing the scientific evidence by examining the historical data and the cultural elements. The interdisciplinary approach which forms the basis of the ISCR's method of research ensures a useful dialogue between the various professional skills involved. The results of the surveys have been gathered together in these two volumes accompanied by a handsome collection of photographs, to present a complete and updated picture of environmental conditions, constitutive materials and state of conservation of the wall paintings, and to show the way ahead for the future restoration of the artworks at Ajanta.

Presents works of art selected from the South and Southeast Asian and Islamic collection of The Metropolitan Museum of Art, lessons plans, and classroom activities.

Immortal Ajanta

This book interleaves the history of post-Independence archaeology in India with the life and times of Madhukar Narhar Deshpande (1920-2008), a leading Indian archaeologist who went on to become the director-general of the Archaeological Survey of India. Spanning nearly a century, this is a tale told through a main character—Deshpande himself—some of whose writings have been included in the volume. We explore the circumstances which brought men like Deshpande to this career path; what it was like to grow up in a family devoted to India's freedom; the watershed moment that created a large cohort that was trained by Mortimer Wheeler, the doyen of British archaeology; the unknown conservation stories around the Gol Gumbad in Bijapur and the Qutb Minar in Delhi; the forgotten story of how the fabric of a historic Hindu shrine, the Badrinath temple, was saved; the chemistry shared by the prime minister, Jawaharlal Nehru, and the archaeologist, Deshpande, at the Ajanta and Ellora cave shrines, and; the political and administrative challenges faced by director generals of archaeology. The book is a must read for anyone interested in India's past in general and the history of Indian archaeology in particular.

"This work is a comprehensive photographic documentation of the murals of Chola period of the eleventh century discovered in the dim passage around the sanctum of the Brihadisvara temple at Thanjavur, Tamilnadu in 1931"--Provided by publisher.

The Bibliography Includes 4081 Entries, Covering Published Materials In English And French Languages Over The Last Two Centuries. The Book Gives A Representative Overview Of What Has Been Researched And Accomplished In The Field Of Indian Buddhist Art And Archaeology Since Wilkins S Article On Bodh-Gaya In 1788 Or Thomas Daniel'S First Illustration On The Kanheri Caves In 1798.

Volume 7 of Walter Spink's monumental and still controversial study of the famous Ajanta caves considers the many connections between the Bagh caves and its "sister site", Ajanta, particularly emphasizing the leading role that Bagh plays in the crucial matter of Buddhist shrine development and the transition from the aniconic to iconic forms of worship. He also explains the relationships between certain caves and solstices, as well as changing technologies, especially in the development of the door fittings in the monks' cells.
