Book One in the Silver Falls Cozy Mystery Series

The Hackney Stud Book

The cinnamon buns in the Secret Ingredient Bakery are mouth wateringly delicious with a soft dough, just the right amount of cinnamon filling, and delicate drizzled icing on the top to finish. They are magical, delectable and ... poisonous? Mayor Silverman came into the bakery for a treat and left on a stretcher. Destination? The mortuary. Cassie, the owner of the bakery, and member of the local coven, is accused of the malicious murder. She and her four witch friends - quirky Lily, glamorous Harmony, quiet Bailey and young Gina - form the Witches Murder Club in order to clear her name - and more importantly - the reputation of her cinnamon buns. With the help of Cassie's cat familiar, Anubis - snarky, descended from Egyptian royalty, and Jeeves-like in manner - they go on the hunt to remove Cassie from the suspect list and find the real murderer. With a touch of romance, a hint of magic, and a dash of charm, this cozy mystery will be sure to entertain!

"Will you come travel with me? Shall we stick by each other as long as we live?" They are lines from the poet Walt Whitman, Edwards, they become something different entirely. Spoken to her by the man she loves, Martin Cabot--who is also one of the Kind--what humanity calls vampires--the words frame a choice between certain death and eternal life. Cassie Edwards has lived life under a shadow--she has been HIV positive since a car accident when she was ten. At nineteen, she's finally getting out leaving her hometown of Knoxville, Tennessee behind to start college at Grove University, in the small town of Grove, Alabama. No guarantees for the future, she knows, but she's determined to move forward, determined that things will change. Martin Cabot, in Grove, Alabama, under a shadow--the shadow of his own destiny. He may appear to be only a young man of twenty-six, mere professor at the University, but he has looked that way for fifty years. Time stopped for Martin decades before, but the world moved on. Meeting Cassie by chance, Martin thinks that he may have found a way to escape the hold his own past has on him, and the world behind on the West Coast, where he first left behind the daylight life to claim a dark immortality. The true test for Martin arrives when her illness takes hold at last, and Martin must decide whether to tell her the truth about himself--a truth that will be exposed--and leave Cassie with a fateful choice. As if this weren't enough, the shadows of Martin's past aren't content to rest and they are coming for him, and for Cassie. The ultimate answers lie on the Dark Road to Paradise.

Left a bequest by a woman with rare psychic powers, Eada of Pevensey suddenly finds herself in possession of a box containing a mysterious document. . .and something even more extraordinary: the gift of second sight. Now she can actually "see" her childhood Norman invader with sea-dark eyes riding across the fields to claim her lands. . .and her love. A reluctant soldier for William the Conqueror, Drogo de Toulon seizes the Pevensey lands as a right of conquest. . .and meets a woman who defies him at every turn. . .arouses uncontrollable desire. Yet now, as war rages across a divided England, the two lovers must find the bond that joins them. . .as they chart a course through battle and betrayal that could break their hearts--or seal their passion for all time. . . Praise for Hannah Howell and her Highland novels. . . "Few authors portray the Scottish highlands as lovingly or colorfully as Hannah Howell." --Romantic Times

Second Chance Series

When Chief Eagle Wolf leaves his Owl Clan behind to protect them from the smallpox he has contracted, he doesn't know if he will live or die. The scales are tipped by a beautiful white woman who nurses him back to health and then captures his heart."

Cassie Edwards, a former foster child, purchases an 1870s Victorian mansion, the one home from her childhood where she felt like part of a family. She's spending her summer lovingly restoring it, with dreams of one day raising a family of her own here. Rayne Tucket, a photojournalist, is haunted by the death of his best friend in Afghanistan, a death he thinks is his fault. He survives day to day. Forever is not in his vocabulary. Swearing off photography, he answers an ad for a handyman—mindless, no emotion involved. As the two of them renovate her house, can Cassie show Rayne that love is strong enough to heal all wounds?

Cassandra at the Wedding

Gardeners' Chronicle

Out of My Heart

From bestselling crime writer Sharon Bolton comes a startling tour de force, hailed in the national press as 'Bolton at her best'. OLD ENEMIES... NEW CRIMES Thirty years ago, WPC Florence Lovelady's career was made when she arrested coffin-maker Larry Glassbrook for three shocking murders. Larry confessed; it was an open and shut case. But now he's dead, and events from the past are repeating themselves. The town Florence left behind still has many secrets. Will she finally uncover the truth? Or will time run out for her first? 'Filled with intrigue and suspense. The Craftsman is spellbinding.' - Clare Mackintosh 'Sharon Bolton at her absolute finest. Beautifully dark and disturbing.' - Jenny Blackhurst 'Darkly gothic and brilliantly original, The Craftsman will have you spellbound.' - JP Delaney 'An absolutely terrific crime novel that takes your darkest fear and makes it reality.' - Elly Griffiths 'Grisly and compelling.' - Sarah Hilary 'Utterly terrifying and gripping.' - Sabine Durrant 'An original, dark, and twisted tale and the words just sparkle on the page.' - Niki Mackay 'I dare you to read it after dark. The Craftsman is a blood-chilling thriller that will cast a spell on you.' - Mark Edwards 'Fabulous, utterly unique storyline, that will effortlessly stand out in the crowd of thrillers. It'll give you the creeps.' - Helen Fields 'Pitch perfect creepiness, air punching female empowerment and sinister mysteries kept me hooked to the very last page.' - Holly Seddon 'The Craftsman goes to some very dark places, and will have readers looking nervously over their shoulders with every page they turn.' - Mick Herron 'A brilliant blend of rich crime thriller with a hint of the gothic. Dark, disturbing and with women who totally rock, with the Craftsman Sharon Bolton has proven herself to be a master Craftsman herself. Buy it. Read it. Tell your friends. Then sleep with the light on.' - Sarah Pinborough

Because she loves horses but is scared of them, Melody wants to conquer her fears, so she hopes a summer camp will be the place to welcome someone with cerebral palsy who wants to learn to ride.

Gardeners Chronicle

Cassandra Edwards is a graduate student at Berkeley: gay, brilliant, nerve-racked, miserable. At the beginning of this novel, she drives back to her family ranch in the foothills of the Sierras to attend the wedding of her identical twin, Judith, to a nice young doctor from Connecticut. Cassandra, however, is hell-bent on sabotaging the wedding. Dorothy Baker's entrancing tragicomic novella follows an unpredictable course of events in which her heroine appears variously as conniving, self-aware, pitiful, frenzied, absurd, and heartbroken—at once utterly impossible and tremendously sympathetic. As she struggles to come to terms with the only life she has, Cassandra reckons with her complicated feelings about the sister who she feels owes it to her to be her alter ego; with her father, a brandy-soaked retired professor of philosophy; and with the ghost of her dead mother. First published in 1962, Cassandra at the Wedding is a book of enduring freshness, insight, and verve. Like the fiction of Jeffrey Eugenides and Jhumpa Lahiri, it is the work of a master stylist with a profound understanding of the complexities of the heart and mind.
