If you've bought or sold items on eBay before, you have some idea of the process, but buying or selling a vehicle over an online auction is more involved than selling your mother's teakettle. The buyer needs to know what to look for and what to watch out for above and beyond the ordinary considerations of buying a vehicle. And for the seller, descriptions, photos, and most other details are much more involved than when selling other ordinary items on eBay.

An entertaining, deeply informative explanation of how high-level financial crimes work, written by an industry insider who's an expert in the field. The way most white-collar crime works is by manipulating institutional psychology. That means creating something that looks as much as possible like a normal set of transactions. The drama comes later, when it all unwinds. Financial crime seems horribly complicated, but there are only so many ways you can con someone out of what's theirs. In Lying for Money, veteran regulatory economist and market analyst Dan Davies tells the story of fraud through a genealogy of financial malfeasance, including: the Great Salad Oil swindle, the Pigeon King International fraud, the fictional British colony of Poyais in South America, the Boston Ladies' Deposit Company, the Portuguese Banknote Affair, Theranos, and the Bre-X scam. Davies brings new insights into these schemes and shows how all frauds, current and historical, belong to one of four categories ("long firm," counterfeiting, control fraud, and market crimes) and operate on the same basic principles. The only elements that change are the victims, the scammers, and the terminology. Davies has years of experience picking the bones out of some of the most famous frauds of the modern age. Now he reveals the big picture that emerges from their labyrinths of deceit and explains how fraud has shaped the entire development of the modern world economy.

There is no shortage of money to be made online. Sure, we've all heard the horror stories from the Dot-Com Bust that took place shortly after the turn of the century. But the Internet is here to stay, and there are plenty of websites that are making millions of dollars each year. There are also lots more websites that are making smaller profits. Some are bringing in six figures, and others are making revenues equivalent to the average working man's salary. And some bring in anywhere from pocket change to a few hundred a month. Some see websites as long-term investments, envisioning the creation of a Web empire such as eBay or MySpace. But a growing number of Web entrepreneurs are turning to domain flipping to make money online. It is a sound strategy that offers low maintenance and high profits, while serving a market that shows no signs of slowing down any time soon.
