This book focuses on the theory of algebraic geometry codes, a subject that has emerged at the meeting point of several fields of mathematics. Unlike other texts, it consistently seeks interpretations that connect coding theory to algebraic geometry and number theory. This approach makes the book useful for both coding experts and experts in algebraic geometry.

Professionalism in Teacher Education

The early twentieth century witnessed the rise of middle-class mass periodicals that, while offering readers congenial material, also conveyed new depictions of manliness, liberal education, and the image of business leaders. "Should Your Boy Go to College?" asked one magazine story; and for over two decades these middle-class magazines answered, in numerous permutations, with a collective "yes!" In the course of interpreting these themes they reshaped the vision of a college education, and created the ideal of a college-educated businessman. Volume 24 of the Perspectives on the History of Higher Education; 2003 provides historical studies touching on contemporary concerns--gender, high-ability students, academic freedom, and, in the case of the Barnes Foundation, the authority of donor intent. Daniel Clark discusses the nuanced changes that occurred to the image of college at the turn of the century. Michael David Cohen offers an important corrective to stereotypes about gender relations in nineteenth-century coeducational colleges. Jane Robbins traces how the young National Research Council embraced the cause of how to identify and encourage superior students as a vehicle for incorporating wartime advances in psychological testing. Susan R. Richardson considers the long Texas tradition of political interference in university affairs. Finally, Edward Epstein and Marybeth Gasman shed historical light on the recent controversy surrounding the Barnes Foundation. The volume also contains brief descriptions of twenty recent doctoral dissertations in the history of higher education. This serial publication will be of interest to historians, sociologists, and of course, educational policymakers.

Are Teachers Made?

This is an extensive beginning level Japanese textbook and Japanese language learning package. Elementary Japanese is designed for students who are just beginning their study of Japanese at the first--year college level or on their own. The author and contributors have created a highly structured approach to learning Japanese that is based on learning the fundamental patters and constructions of the language as well as the writing system including basic kanji. Systematic grammatical explanations are provided in enough detail for this book to be used as a reference work as well as an introductory textbook. The accompanying MP3 audio CD is a great way to learn Japanese and ensures correct pronunciation and helps to build listening comprehension. After completing this course, you will be able to: Describe yourself, your family and your friends. Talk about daily events using basic vocabulary and grammatical constructions. Understand conversations on these topics as well as classroom activities. Read Japanese articles and write short and simple compositions and letters.

The author states that the three purposes of the book are to suggest ways to promote effective communication in the elementary-school classroom, to indicate the speaking activities that are part of the language-arts program, and to note the part the classroom teacher plays in improving the child's speech. Many speech activities are suggested, but the important place of poetry is stressed. Poetry is far too frequently omitted from classroom- activities, partially because of teachers' lack of security in handling it with children; the author's treatment of this subject should help to bolster the confidence of young teachers and encourage them in the use of poetry. A chart lists the aims of speech education and information about the growth of children in language, and should be a helpful guide. A practical book with many examples of actual classroom experiences and school activities, of children's problems related to speech, and of faulty co-operation in dealing with such problems. The major responsibility, of course, for speech training in the school lies with the classroom teacher.
