Hymn of the Tiger Mother). If you ' re like many parents, you might ask family and friends for advice when faced with important choices about how to raise your kids. You might turn to parenting books or simply rely on timeworn religious or cultural traditions. But when Dalton Conley, a dual-doctorate scientist and full-blown nerd, needed childrearing advice, he turned to scientific research to make the big decisions. In Parentology, Conley hilariously reports the results of those experiments, from bribing his kids to do math (since studies show conditional cash transfers improved educational and health outcomes for kids) to teaching them impulse control by giving them weird names (because evidence shows kids with unique names learn not to react when their peers tease them) to getting a vasectomy (because fewer kids in a family mean smarter kids). Conley encourages parents to draw on the latest data to rear children, if only because that level of engagement with kids will produce solid and happy ones. Ultimately these experiments are very loving, and the outcomes are redemptive—even when Conley ' s sassy kids show him the limits of his profession. Parentology teaches you everything you need to know about the latest literature on parenting—with lessons that go down easy. You ' ll be laughing and learning at the same time.

This tool is essential for anyone entering an MBA program. The MBA Survival Kit is a series of programs brought to you by the Graduate Management Admission Council and McGraw Hill/Irwin. This four CD program provides an introduction to Finance, Accounting, Quantitative Skills and Statistics topics and is designed as a review for those entering an MBA program. On average each CD contains 16-20 hours of self-directed learning that explores core quantitative skills used across functional business areas within distinctly different companies, with the user assuming the role of a consultant. The programs guide the student through two key areas of learning that reinforce student skill building using video, animation and consistent feedback. The training area provides a topic overview, animations and practice for that topic. The office area contains client cases. The user, in the role of a business consultant, works through cases in a virtual office setting, to reinforce the skills learned in the training area.

Designed to promote an exposition of the basic principles of the subject and satisfy the requirements of a bridging course, this text aims to be of use to any person who has never before encountered the basic maxims of accountancy.

For all courses in construction accounting and construction finance, and for courses in engineering economics taught in construction management programs. This book helps construction professionals and construction management students master the principles of financial management, and adapt and apply them to the challenge of profitably managing construction companies. It integrates content that has traditionally been taught through separate accounting, finance, and engineering economics texts. Students learn how to account for a construction company's financial resources; how to manage its costs, profits, and cash flows; how to evaluate different sources of funding a company's cash needs; and how to quantitatively analyze financial decisions. Readers gain hands-on experience through 220 example problems and over 390 practice problems, many of them based on situations actually encountered by the author. This edition adds more than 100 new discussion questions, and presents financial equations and accounting transactions more visually to support more intuitive learning.
