Funny, shocking, sometimes sad, this makes gripping reading. The Virgin Hunter is a true story of a respectable, 48 year-old mother who becomes a highly paid escort. The book takes you through many of Anna's secret, highly paid and often hilarious exploits with some of her clients, Fireman Sam, The Golfer, Bernard the Butcher, The Slug and Army Man, to name but a few. Anna also has several attempts at 'Domming' which are hilarious; a man in pink stockings, a piddling' pool, PVC, and would be slaves-in-training. The book is a highly entertaining insight into Anna's secret world; it is frank and funny, but also in parts, highly thought-provoking. This is an absolute must-read; you will not be able to put it down.

With a writing style alive with the rhythms and riffs of jazz, Jeffries deftly examines the questions of identity, race and family in a provocative, moving and often hilarious memoir. Too light to be black, too dark to be white, finding a place in race-conscious American society as the son of a black father and Jewish mother was a challenging journey for the author. Following a different path to his more wayward siblings, he discovers conflicts within himself that have as much to do with Kafka as with Ellison. The truth he learns - you must create yourself.

Charlotte Moore has three children: the two oldest, George and Sam, are autistic; the youngest Jake is not. In this extraordinary book, which combines personal memoir with the most recent known information on this most fascinating and elusive of conditions, she describes the circumstances of their birth, behaviour, diagnosis, treatment - and brilliantly conveys what daily life is like for a family with autism. It's an invaluable book for anyone with an interest in childhood and child development.
