The Global Guide is an outstanding resource." -Daniel Mensch, Associate Partner, Andersen Consulting, Sweden

MASTER THE RULES OF THE GLOBAL JOB MARKET COUNTRY BY COUNTRY Did you know that in Japan, the job application or ririkisho is a handwritten two-page form that is purchased from the local stationery store? That in the US, attaching a photo to your resume/cv is a faux pas that tells the employer you do not know the rules? That in Sweden, your resume/cv should be signed by someone who can attest that what you wrote is true? That in Korea, it is important to state on your resume/cv if you are the eldest child in the family? Commerce has gone global, and so have careers. If you want to capitalize on rapidly expanding opportunities outside your native land, this unique, comprehensive guide gives you the knowledge you need to make your very best impression anywhere in the world. Experts from more than forty countries—from Argentina and the Baltics to Saudi Arabia, Thailand, the UK, and the US—share cultural do's and don'ts, business practices, and job-hunting tips and help you create a winning resume tailored to the specific requirements of your target nation.

The definitive career guide for grad students, adjuncts, post-docs and anyone else eager to get tenure or turn their Ph.D. into their ideal job Each year tens of thousands of students will, after years of hard work and enormous amounts of money, earn their Ph.D. And each year only a small percentage of them will land a job that justifies and rewards their investment. For every comfortably tenured professor or well-paid former academic, there are countless underpaid and overworked adjuncts, and many more who simply give up in frustration. Those who do make it share an important asset that separates them from the pack: they have a plan. They understand exactly what they need to do to set themselves up for success. They know what really moves the needle in academic job searches, how to avoid the all-too-common mistakes that sink so many of their peers, and how to decide when to point their Ph.D. toward other, non-academic options. Karen Kelsky has made it her mission to help readers join the select few who get the most out of their Ph.D. As a former tenured professor and department head who oversaw numerous academic job searches, she knows from experience exactly what gets an academic applicant a job. And as the creator of the popular and widely respected advice site The Professor is In, she has helped countless Ph.D.'s turn themselves into stronger applicants and land their dream careers. Now, for the first time ever, Karen has poured all her best advice into a single handy guide that addresses the most important issues facing any Ph.D., including:

determining educational and experience qualifications for Air Force computer related jobs. These same guidelines can be used to plan training and education programs for those jobs. Computer related refers to all categories of jobs where computers are employed, regardless of the type of job or application. Problem: Computer based systems form an essential element of every operational and support mission area in the Air Force. Unfortunately, the development, use, and maintenance of these computer based systems have been prone to errors, cost overruns, and schedule slippages. This has had an adverse effect on the operational readiness of the Air Force. One of the most serious causes of these problems is the lack of sufficient, qualified individuals in computer related job positions. A deeper understanding of the qualifications necessary for these jobs will contribute to solving the problems of computer based systems. Conclusion: The problem with computer personnel can be solved with a coordinated program of technology assessment and job analysis. The Software Technology for Adaptable Reliable Systems (STARS) program will accomplish this goal with adequate support. Other programs such as Project Boldstroke will assist in establishing a wide base of support for intelligent application of computer systems.
