The scarcity of jobs, coupled with an unusually high number of qualified candidates, means that job seekers today must be vigilant about setting themselves apart. It is not unusual for employers to receive hundreds or thousands of resumes for one open position. With that in mind, it is exceedingly important that job seekers know how to approach their job strategy and utilize creative resources to differentiate themselves and show how they can make an immediate impact in a company or organization. To share insider secrets on finding – and landing – the job, Augustine created How Hard Are You Knocking: Landing a Job in a Rebounding Economy which is the third edition of this acclaimed series. "For the last five years, we have been researching the job market, growth areas, and the industries that have been significantly impacted by the economic downturn. We have studied growth markets and industries projected to expand in the next ten years. We have conducted extensive research with hiring executives in order to understand their hiring criteria, candidate expectations, and growth plans for the future. We have led focus groups consisting of college students, entry-level candidates, and experienced job seekers and have conducted seminars and workshops for job seekers around the country. Finally, as business owners, we have interviewed thousands and hired hundreds of candidates at all levels in various geographic regions throughout the US, Europe and Asia. Through this extensive research and market intelligence, we have developed a thorough yet-concise guide that will help you land the perfect job." One of the country's leading career and employment experts, authors Tim Augustine and Lisa Mangigian draw on their experience as hiring executives with nearly 20 years of proven best practices for finding a new job, successfully entering the workforce, and taking a proactive role in your career. How Hard Are You Knocking will be one of the most important tools you leverage in your career. entire career Why this book? Most job search advice is terrible. Job searches are miserable. And I could spend every hour of every day of my life advising job seekers and I wouldn't scratch the surface of the need in this area. I want to reach as many people as possible with this message. I want to help job seekers take back control of their search. Everyday people come to me that need my help to find great jobs but they simply can't afford my services. Even with the 10 hours a week that I set aside for pro bono work it doesn't scratch the surface of the demand for real help for job seekers that have been struggling for months and sometimes, years.

What you may not realize is many Hiring Managers are under similar pressures as you, the job seeker. They are accountable to their superiors should the person they hire not work out.
