Forward

The main theme of this year's congress is 'Animal lives worth living'. This theme focuses on our responsibility for all animals kept or influenced by humans, to ensure that we can provide a life for them that takes into account all relevant aspects of animal welfare,

aided by applied
ethology as the key
scientific discipline.
This not only means positive experiences. By monitoring and interpreting animal behaviour, we gain important insights into each of these aspects of quality of life.

Across the world, animals are being domesticated at an unprecedented rate and scale. But what exactly is domestication, and what does it tell us about ourselves? In this book, Marcus Baynes-Rock seeks the common thread linking stories about the domestication of Australia's native animals, arguing that domestication is part of a process by which late modernity threatens to undo the world. In a deeply personal account, the author tells of his encounters with crocodiles and emus

behind fences, dingoes and
kangaroos crossing
boundaries, and native bees
producing honey in his suburban backyard. Drawing on comparisons between Aboriginal and colonial
Australians, Baynes-Rock reveals how the

domestication of Australia's fauna is a process of "unmaking." As an extension of late modernity, the connections that tie
humans and other animals to wider ecologies are being severed, threatening
to isolate us and our domesticates from

the rest of the world.

It is here that Baynes-

Rock reveals a key

difference between

Aboriginal and

modes of landscape

management: while

one is focused on a

systemic approach

and sees humans as

integral to ecological integrity, the other

File Type PDF

seeks to sever
ecological processes.

The question that emerges is: How might we reconfigure
and maintain these connections without undoing humanity?
