Seminar paper from the year 1998 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies - Linguistics, grade: 1 (A), University of Zurich (English Seminar), course: Lexicography, 18 entries in the bibliography, language: English, abstract: In this paper, 80 lexicographic definitions from the Oxford Advanced Learner's Dictionary are classified and evaluated, the basic question being the following: are similar words defined in similar ways? The words are classified according to part of speech, concreteness and word frequency, and eight different ways to define a word are considered. The study confirms that concreteness and part of speech have a considerable impact on the way a particular word is defined in the ALD.

Know someone with an antwacky stem-winder? Heard the Band of Hope Street? Ever been on a vinegar trip? Do you jangle? Ever met a Cunard yank in the Dingle? Could you pay for a dodger with a joey? Have you heard a maccyowler in a jigger? The Liverpool English Dictionary records the rich vocabulary that has evolved over the past century and a half, as part of the complex, stratified, multi-faceted and changing culture of this singular city. With over 2,000 entries from 'Abbadabba' to 'Z-Cars', the roots/routes, meanings and histories of the words of Liverpool are presented in a concise, clear and accessible format. Born and bred in Liverpool, Professor Tony Crowley has spent over thirty years compiling this bold and innovative dictionary, investigating historical lexicons, sociological studies, works of history, local newspapers, popular cultural representations, and, most importantly, the extensive 'lost' literature of the city. Illuminating, often remarkable, and always enjoyable, this book transforms our understanding of the history of language in Liverpool.

The aim of this dissertation is to examine the definition, spelling and pronunciation of Islamic terms as portrayed in the Oxford Advanced Learner's Dictionary (OALD, 2005), the Macmillan English Dictionary for Advanced Learners (Macmillan, 2007), and the Cambridge Advanced Learner's Dictionary (CALD, 2008). Through this research, one would be able to look at the problematic definition, spelling and pronunciation of Islamic terms in the three English dictionaries that bring about misconception, confusion and misunderstanding among dictionary users about the intended definition, spelling and pronunciation of the terms as understood in Islam. This research is based on a qualitative data collection. The Islamic terms were first identified from the OALD (2005) which served as a basis for reference of target items for the other two dictionaries. The identified Islamic terms then were examined and alternative suggestions for appropriate definition, spelling, pronunciation and transliteration of the target items as understood in Islam were provided based on the translation of the Holy Qur'an, books written by Muslim scholars and intelligentsia, Islamic encyclopedia as well as English - Arabic dictionaries. The results show that in the OALD (2005), 34 of 49 terms are intact definitions, nine of the terms are inadequately defined and six of them are inaccurately defined. 22 of 42 items in the Macmillan (2007) arc intact definitions, 11 of them arc inadequately defined and nine terms are inaccurately defined. In the CALD (2008), 15 of 32 items are intact definitions, 10 terms are inadequate definitions and seven terms are inaccurate definitions. 24 terms are inaccurately spelled while 46 items are mispronounced in the OALD (2005), 18 terms are inaccurately spelled while 39 items are mispronounced in the Macmillan (2007) and 16 terms are inaccurately spelled while 30 items are mispronounced in the CALD (2008). In brief, the misconception of Islamic terms in terms of definition, spelling and pronunciation in English dictionaries is worth acknowledging to prevent confusion and misunderstanding among dictionary users who wish to understand Islam. It is modestly presumed that this study is a contribution to Islamic lexicon in the English language dictionaries.

The Dictionary of Hiberno-English is the leading reference book on Hiberno-English - the form of English commonly spoken in Ireland. It connects the spoken and the written language, and is a unique national dictionary that bears witness to Irish history, struggles and the creative identities found in Ireland. Reflecting the social, political, religious and financial changes of people's ever-evolving lives, it contains words and expressions not usually seen in a dictionary, such as 'kibosh', 'smithereens', 'Peggy's Leg', 'hames', 'yoke', 'blaa', 'banjax' and 'lubán'. It is a celebration of an irrepresible gift for the creative, expressive and reckless manipulation of the English language!

Contains definitions of 100,000 words and phrases for advanced learners of English, and includes pronunciation guides, as well as over 160,000 example sentences.
