Master's Thesis from the year 2011 in the subject Business economics - Business Management, Corporate Governance, grade: MSc Degree awarded (Merit), Ofsted Brookes University (Faculty of Business), course: MSc in Business Management, language: English, abstract: Corporate Social Responsibility and sustainability are terms that are increasingly associated with businesses today. In this thesis we take a closer look at the practices involved in being a socially responsible cooperation and assess its influence on the performance of the cooperation to see if CSR behavior adds to the corporation's profitability? The author's choice was to study Marks and Spencer's sustainability strategy; plan A, for its responsible initiatives across its business operations have been creating debate and interest in the UK's consumer market since its announcement in the year 2007. The methodology's process was inductive and followed a qualitative in-depth approach with the application of BSC, balanced score card; an assessment of M&S' sustainability plan was conducted on four business aspects, customers, employees, internal processes and last the financial aspect. All was analyzed in the light of Hart and Milstein's sustainability value framework. Nevertheless a quantitative approach was adopted through a financial performance comparison to British retailer John Lewis; to draw conclusions if M&S sustainability plan has indeed acted as a differentiator in performance against a competitor. The findings supported no increased profitability for the cooperation. However they did reveal that socially responsible co operations do achieve better value proposition, better branding, and are generally more resilient to scandals as a result of higher trust from the customers' side. Conclusions drawn from M&S study were that CSR practices help maintain and attract talent; it engages customers and increases their likelihood of repeat purchases, it also creates savings through a variety of efficiency measures on operational levels; small savings scattered across locations and departments which could substantially decrease the total cost of doing business.

This coursework is based on comprehensive primary and secondary market research which will allow the group to develop a greater understanding of the current market situation. The focus of this coursework is on the non-food clothes home market of Marks & Spencer, because, concerning Michael Porters' Diamond Model "it suggests that the national home base of an organization plays an important role in shaping the extent to which it is likely to achieve advantage on a global scale" (Michael Porter, 1998). The objectives of this coursework are as follows:
• To discuss the profile of the existing retailer • To recommend an effective methodology approach which can be taken by M&S to identify if our idea is feasible.
• To demonstrate our new proposed idea is feasible for the retailer to undertake in terms of offering an additional and enjoyable service to consumers and to gain a competitive advantage.

In a fast moving world, businesses need to keep up with data analysis and pattern spotting to identify future opportunities. Anne Lise Kjaer presents a unique methodology for global trend spotting along with practical tools and approaches to help companies and organizations analyse market changes and determine the way ahead.

This book deals with the area of marketing in general practice. It presents a step-by-step guide to the nature of marketing in which each aspect is presented in short, separate chapters accompanied by questions, checklists and practical examples. It is based upon the lessons learned by a number of GPs and practice managers over a variety of situations and concludes with a comprehensive case study of one particular practice with which the authors worked. Readers of this book should gain a clear idea of the nature and purpose of marketing techniques and how the opportunities now becoming available can benefit both practice and patients.

Seminar paper from the year 2005 in the subject Business economics - Marketing, Corporate Communication, CRM, Market Research, Social Media, grade: A (73 percent), University of Teesside (Teesside Business School), course: Marketing Management, 36 entries in the bibliography, language: English, abstract: According to the Financial Times, one of Europe's largest department store and mail-order group KarstadtQuelle AG may have to dismiss about 20,000 to 30,000 of its employees and to sell approximately 77 of its smaller warehouses as well as all retail chains including SinnLeifers, Wehmeyer, Runners Point and Golf House.E. The over-the-counter segment of the KarstadtQuelle AG dropped by 5 percent from 7.3 in 2002 to 6.9 billion Euro in 2003 which is under performing its sector. In the year 2003 the group generated a total sales of 15.3 billion Euro with 100,956 employees and 2,621,4 thousand square meter sales space. As the current marketing weakness concerns the over-the-counter retail which is one out of KarstadtQuelle AG's four segments, this management report focuses on the warehouses which are under the legal unit called Karstadt AG: The report has the aim to identify and describe the customers of the Karstadt AG, to discuss the marketing strategy of that organisation and to analyse a current marketing weakness within the KarstadtQuelle AG's operations. Finally it provides a plan how that marketing weakness can be resolved. It applies a variety of different marketing concepts and tools such as customer segmentation, Ansoff-matrix, marketing mix, SWOT analysis, and STEP analysis. Finally, the research and the analysis showed that the customers of Karstadt AG are all citizens of Germany from all classes, all age groups, all social milieus. Its overall marketing strategy is to give the "customers what they want." The marketing weakness of KarstadtQuelle AG is the usage of the classical warehouse concept which has reached the declining phase of its life cycle

Strategy is something with which managers regularly engage throughout their working lives, yet it is often written and researched as though periodic box-ticking exercises are the only show in town. This textbook provides students and professionals with a solid understanding of the strategic management theories, along with the tools needed to apply them and contribute toward successful organizations. The author starts from how strategy is realized in the business world and applies the key theories to provide a rounded understanding. Contemporary cases studies are provided to help readers visualize the application of strategic thinking. Including the various stakeholders, organizational politics and culture, the author opens a window to the real world of strategic management. Primarily aimed at postgraduate students and those in executive education, this textbook will also be useful as a handbook for managers looking to get their heads around this easily confused subject.

Research Paper (undergraduate) from the year 2015 in the subject Business economics - Business Management, Corporate Governance, grade: 61, Cardiff Metropolitan University, course: Masters in Business Administration, language: English, abstract: This term paper deals with the strategic management of the company Marks and Spencer which has become a leading British retail icon since its conception more than a hundred years ago. The book deals in the first part with the company profile, the industry evolution, the current strategic position. The second part contains an industry analysis and market failures. It ends with re-strategizing.

As the effectiveness of traditional marketing techniques continues to diminish, contemporary marketing increasingly becomes the most reliable method of expanding outreach and reflecting the needs of the modern consumer. When implemented, these contemporary strategies offer the greatest support for their client base, with a product range that adapts to the desires of the target market. The channels used to underpin these strategies are also radically different from traditional methods - placing emphasis upon platforms such as social media. Designed for both undergraduate and postgraduate students, as well as those in executive education and general business, The Handbook of Contemporary Marketing covers a wide range of themes, including: - Consumer behaviour - The latest marketing research - Services marketing - Brand management - Global marketing, and - Ethics in marketing. Each chapter includes case studies to illustrate and contextualise the topics covered, featuring companies as diverse as Amazon, McLaren, Unilever, UBS and Virgin Money. In alignment with its subject matter, The Handbook of Contemporary Marketing prioritises practicality over theory-based content - providing a comprehensive and contextualised insight into how marketing is developing in the 21st century.

Virtual determinants of retail success have been thoroughly covered in the book besides the regular retail business areas the book describe retail entrepreneurs selection of dealers, their motivation for selling their products in preference to competitive brands. Sales calls made on retailers by the principles, including call objective, call planning, call closure and feedback are highlighted For The benefit of the readers.

This book explores the application of an innovative assessment approach known as Dynamic Assessment (DA) to academic writing assessment, as developed within the Vygotskian sociocultural theory of learning. DA blends instruction with assessment by targeting and further developing students' Zone of Proximal Development (ZPD). The book presents the application of DA to assessing academic writing by developing a set of DA procedures for academic writing teachers. It further demonstrates the application of Hallidayan Systemic Functional Linguistics (SFL), combined with DA, to track undergraduate business management students' academic writing and conceptual development in distance education. This work extends previous DA studies in three key ways: i) it explicitly focuses on the construction of a macrogenre (whole text) as opposed to investigations of decontextualized language fragments, ii) it offers the first in-depth application of the powerful SFL tool to analyse students' academic writing to track their academic writing trajectory in DA research, and iii) it identifies a range of mediational strategies and consequently expands Poehner's (2005) framework of mediation typologies. Dynamic Assessment of Students' Academic Writing will be of great value to academic writing researchers and teachers, language assessment researchers and postgraduate students interested in academic writing, alternative assessment and formative feedback in higher education.

Master's Thesis from the year 2017 in the subject Business economics - Business Management, Corporate Governance, grade: 2.1, Prifysgol Cymru University of Wales, language: English, abstract: This work examines why the clothing sales of Marks and Spencer have been falling in recent years and recommends a solution to minimize this issue that leads to the substantial financial losses. The work evaluates the internal and external environment of the company and concludes that the company must adjust a new strategy in order to compete efficiently in the industry. It is recommended to focus only on the basics which brought success in the 90's; stock with the third- party brands; merger with another company or focus only on the food business which is successful on the market. The work draws attention to the fact that in the 90's the profits from the sales of clothing peaked and topped £1 bn. In 2008, there was an increase in the clothing sales and the profits peaked again £1 bn. However, after that year the profit has been constantly falling. Further investigations reveal that the drop of sales coincided with the appearance of many businesses which produce similar goods at the same or lower price. Moreover, the visibility of growing competition from the online angle of the industry and the fact that M&S was a latecomer with introduction of the online store have negatively influenced the performance of the firm in the clothing sector.

The need for a more conscious, focused and proactive approach to the management of health-care organizations has increased substantially. One consequence of this is that health-care managers are having to look at managerial approaches and techniques that previously were the province of the private sector. Prominent among those is the whole area of marketing. This work takes a broad approach to the marketing process, highlighting some of the challenges that health-care managers and medical professionals are having to face. Having done this, the authors move on to examine some of the characteristics of good and bad management practice. It is against this background that, in subsequent chapters, they turn their attention to the question of marketing and how it might best contribute to the management of organizations throughout the health sector. Each chapter includes questions and checklists offering scope for applying marketing principles to primary and secondary health-care organizations of all types, sizes and specialities.

'Business Economics: Theory and Application' is an undaunting and accessible text that focuses on the real world of business and how this relates to economics. The links to business are far more intrinsic that in other business economics textbooks where a business "flavour" is simply added to traditional economics theory. It provides an in-depth jargon-free analysis, particularly relevant for one semester courses. A variety of case studies and questions are used throughout the text both to illustrate key points and for seminar and assignment work. Diagrams are included to aid the explanation of complex issues, and review and discussion questions are incorporated to consolidate and expand on the learning. A lecturer's supplement accompanies the text.

Management: An Introduction provides a comprehensive account of the themes and functions of management. Aimed at the first-time student of the subject, this is an accessible and academically rigorous text which brings the topic to life with a wide range of appealing and readily identifiable examples.
