or simply rely on timeworn religious or cultural traditions. But when Dalton Conley, a dual-doctorate scientist and full-blown nerd, needed childrearing advice, he turned to scientific research to make the big decisions. In Parentology, Conley hilariously reports the results of those experiments, from bribing

his kids to do
math (since
studies show
conditional
cash transfers
improved
educational and
health outcomes
for kids) to
teaching them
impulse control
by giving them

(because evidence shows kids with unique names learn not to react when their peers tease them) to getting a vasectomy (because fewer kids in a family mean

Conley
encourages
parents to draw
on the latest
data to rear
children, if only because
that level of
engagement with
kids will produce solid
and happy ones.

Ultimately
these experiments are
very loving,
and the
outcomes are
redemptive—even
when Conley's
sassy kids show
him the limits
of his profession.
