This book examines the role of angels in medieval and Renaissance art and religion from Dante to the Counter-Reformation.

Kazimir Malevich's painting Black Square is one of the twentieth century's emblematic paintings, the visual manifestation of a new period in world artistic culture at its inception. None of Malevich's contemporary revolutionaries created a manifesto, an emblem, as capacious and in its own way unique as this work; it became both the quintessence of the Russian avant-gardist's own art—which he called Suprematism—and a milestone on the highway of world art. Writing about this single painting, Aleksandra Shatskikh sheds new light on Malevich, the Suprematist movement, and the Russian avant-garde. Malevich devoted his entire life to explicating Black Square's meanings. This process engendered a great legacy: the original abstract movement in painting and its theoretical grounding; philosophical treatises; architectural models; new art pedagogy; innovative approaches to theater, music, and poetry; and the creation of a new visual environment through the introduction of decorative applied designs. All of this together spoke to the tremendous potential for innovative shape and thought formation concentrated in Black Square. To this day, many circumstances and events of the origins of Suprematism have remained obscure and have sprouted arbitrary interpretations and fictions. Close study of archival materials and testimonies of contemporaries synchronous to the events described has allowed this author to establish the true genesis of Suprematism and its principal painting.

Oil Painting the Angel within Da Vinci's the Virgin of the Rocks

Twelve shocking paintings. Eleven famous murders. One missing artist . . . and one woman driven to find her—this Reese's Book Club x Hello Sunshine Selection is a “stunning achievement” (Los Angeles Times). Kim Lord is an avant-garde figure, feminist icon, and agent provocateur in the L.A. art scene. Her groundbreaking new exhibition Still Lives is comprised of self-portraits depicting herself as famous, murdered women—the Black Dahlia, Chandra Levy, Nicole Brown Simpson, among many others—and the works are as compelling as they are disturbing, implicating a culture that is too accustomed to violence against women. As the city's richest art patrons pour into the Rocque Museum's opening night, all the staff, including editor Maggie Richter, hope the event will be enough to save the historic institution's flailing finances. Except Kim Lord never shows up to her own gala. Fear mounts as the hours and days drag on and Lord remains missing. Suspicion falls on the up-and-coming gallerist Greg Shaw Ferguson, who happens to be Maggie's ex. A rogue's gallery of eccentric art world figures could also have motive for the act, and as Maggie gets drawn into her own investigation of Lord's disappearance, she'll come to suspect all of those closest to her. Set against a culture that often fetishizes violence, Still Lives is a page-turning exodus into the art world's hall of mirrors, and one woman's journey into the belly of an industry flooded with money and secrets. “It's a thrilling mystery that will leave you wondering which characters you can and can't trust . . . There's a twist at the end that still keeps us up at night, it's THAT good.” —Reese Witherspoon (A Reese's Book Club x Hello Sunshine Selection)

The Emperor's Spears are a Chapter on the edge of destruction, last watchmen over the Elara's Veil nebula. Now, the decisions of one man, Amadeus Kaias Incarius of the Mentor Legion, will determine the Chapter's fate... The scattered worlds of the Elara's Veil nebula were once protected by the oath of unity sworn by three mighty Chapters of the Adeptus Astartes. The Star Scorpions were undone by flaws in their genetic coding. The Celestial Lions were ravaged by the Inquisition for sins they did not commit. Now, after hundreds of years, only the Emperor's Spears still keep their vigil. They are barbarian watchmen against the Outer Dark; bloodied but unbroken in their long duty. Amadeus Kaias Incarius, a brother of the Mentor Legion, is commanded to cross the Great Rift and assess the Spears' war-readiness, only to be drawn into the chaotic plight of a depleted crusade on the Imperium's benighted frontier. The decisions he makes, far from the God-Emperor's light, will decide the fate of the war-torn Chapter.

Formed in the aftermath of the Horus Heresy, the Flesh Tearers, veterans of the Blood Angels Legion now cast adrift, gather behind their leader, Chapter Master Amit, and set out to forge their own destiny. None of the scions of Sanguinius are as bloody or wrathful as the Flesh Tearers. The fury of this Chapter, scorned by the Blood Angels and many of their successors, is legendary. Within them, the Black Rage is made manifest, a curse on the Imperium and its enemies. In the uncertain years following the end of the Great Heresy, it fell to Amit to lead this benighted Chapter. Upon his shoulders lay a heavy burden, for to prevent their own self-annihilation, the Flesh Tearers must not only fight their many foes but their very nature itself.

"Hercule Poirot meets Fox Mulder" in these stories featuring occult detective Jules de Grandin—volume 3 in a complete series that "raises genuine shivers" (Kirkus Reviews, on The Devil's Rosary, vol. 2). The pulp magazine Weird Tales was an early platform for many authors of the bizarre and fantastic, including such luminaries as H. P. Lovecraft, Robert E. Howard, August Derleth, and Clark Ashton Smith. In the golden age of genre pulp fiction, Weird Tales contributor Seabury Quinn was more popular than them all. Yet in recent years, Quinn and his chilling tales of supernatural mystery have fallen into relative obscurity. Quinn's most famous character, the French detective Dr. Jules de Grandin, investigated cases involving monsters, devil worshippers, serial killers, and spirits from beyond the grave, often set in the small town of Harrisonville, New Jersey. With shades of Arthur Conan Doyle's Sherlock Holmes and Agatha Christie's Hercule Poirot, de Grandin captivated readers for nearly three decades. The third volume, The Dark Angel, includes all of the Jules de Grandin stories from "The Lost Lady" (1931) to "The Hand of Glory" (1933), as well as "The Devil's Bride" (1932), the only novel featuring de Grandin, which was originally serialized over six issues of Weird Tales.

A #1 New York Times Bestseller! "Funny, insightful, illuminating . . ." —The Boston Globe

*Twelve years ago, Midnight in the Garden of Good and Evil exploded into a monumental success, residing a record-breaking four years on the New York Times bestseller list (longer than any work of fiction or nonfiction had before) and turning John Berendt into a household name. The City of Falling Angels is Berendt's first book since Midnight, and it immediately reminds one what all the fuss was about. Turning to the magic, mystery, and decadence of Venice, Berendt gradually reveals the truth behind a sensational fire that in 1996 destroyed the historic Fenice opera house. Encountering a rich cast of characters, Berendt tells a tale full of atmosphere and surprise as the stories build, one after the other, ultimately coming together to portray a world as finely drawn as a still-life painting.*

*Alone in a foreign land, Soren must come to terms with loss and a gift that has been as much a burden as a benefit. A long abandoned city may hold the answers he seeks about the Gift of Grace, but a lethal assassin proves that old enemies have not forgotten him. As misfortune pulls him ever farther from an unsettled score, he finds hope in an unexpected place... The Huntsman's Amulet follows The Tattered Banner and is the second part of the Society of the Sword trilogy.*

A film, video, and DVD guide for the true lover of the cinema, this volume focuses on independent and international films as well as the best of the mainstream. 450 photos throughout.

*How to Make $200-$300 a Day Painting Addresses is a step-by-step guidebook on how to make real cash daily by painting addresses on people's curbs. Painting addresses is a business that pays cash daily. If you need money "right now," you can try to get a loan or you can paint a few addresses and eat steak tonight at Morton's. This book is the distilled wisdom of generations of address painters. This is not an internet business or a get-rich-quick scheme. You have to get up every day and do the work; no one is going to do it for you. You have to put out advertisements and actually paint the addresses of people who say "yes" (fill out the order form). There is absolutely no door-to-door selling involved. All you have to do is post flyers on doors and come back the next day and paint the addresses of anyone who has filled in the form, but this is a business and that means that in order to make a profit you have to take it seriously. This book shows you how, without any hype and hyperbole. You will learn what flyers work better than others, and what flyers work best of all. You will learn how to post flyers to make a LOT more money* than anyone else doing this business, even if you put your flyers up one month after they have. Some people do this business and fail, or they make very little money because they have never been trained how to do this properly. This book cuts through all of the crap and shows you how to make this a profitable venture. The secret is in knowing what to put on your flyer and how to tape it up so that you will get the orders. All of this is covered in detail. Additionally you will learn what kind of paint to use, how much it costs, and where to get it. Also, you will learn secrets on how to CONSISTENTLY get 10-30% off your supplies on a regular basis (buying locally, in small or large quantities) and even how to occasionally save up to, and over 50% on your flyers, paint, and other needed supplies. There is no magic to this. It entails knowing how to get the special discounts major corporations get and how to find and use the coupons, rebates, and rewards your suppliers offer but do not always advertise. All of these discounts, large and small, add to your bottom line profit and can make the difference between a ho-hum month and a great one financially. All of this is revealed because the author is retired and is NOT in competition with you. Painting addresses is one of those "unseen businesses" that very few people do and they make a LOT of money doing. This business won't make you a millionaire, but it can pay your bills very nicely and allow you the freedom of owning your own micro-business and never having to deal with jerk bosses, office politics, wearing a suit and tie, or being at the mercy of corporate downsizing. You can paint addresses in cities all across America and even do this business as a giant road trip. The best painters pay for their own vacations by bringing along the paint and stencils and work a few days in the area they are vacationing in. Moreover, "How to Make $200-$300 a Day Painting Addresses" explains WHY some people make $50-$300 a week while others make $200-$300 a day on average, and over $1,000 a week consistently; and how to do it. This book details out what kinds of flyers to use and gives you the exact wording that professionals are using right now, and have used recently to earn over $1,000 a week on a regular basis. This book can and should easily pay for itself the very first hour you go out and paint. This is a business with a high profit margin that you can start for less than $100 and be "in the black" (making profits) your first week. From there on it is simply a matter of not getting lazy or get lulled by the easy money.

Whether you will make any money is up to you. You have to go out and do this--the book can only show you how. NEW WEBSITE (once you have the book) is here: <http://painterbob.vacau.com/>

Steve Rasnic Tem once said his writing was filtered through "a different lens to view the world." With a style all his own, Tem has galvanized and thrilled fans of weird fiction worldwide. His efforts have earned him the Bram Stoker, World Fantasy and British Fantasy Awards. His métier is the monstrous secret, the unsettling darkness hidden within all of us. "Bedtime Story" opens with a line that defines Tem's style: "I don't know why bad things happen. There's never a good reason. They just do." The story introduces us to a nightmare conjured from the mind of a child, preparing to victimize her own father. "The Unmasking" takes us into the tortured psyche of a horribly deformed recluse obsessed with the intricacies of human skin. "Outside," one of several homages to the great H.P. Lovecraft, melds Tem's uniquely poetic style with the cosmic horror created by that twisted gentleman from Providence. "The Masque of Edgar Allan Poe" focuses on Tem's fondness for mask imagery, and how the veneer we wear on the surface can become immobile, consuming our souls. "The Doll Thief" is a deeply disturbing exercise in pathos, perversion and psychosis. In "Pulled Down to Sleep," a man fights to remain awake, knowing that sleep will doom him to a life of unspeakable nightmares. "Worms" is a frightening tale of vengeance that will literally leave your skin crawling. With "Mother Hag," Tem gives us a "grim" fairy tale about monstrous motherly love, courtesy of a grotesque, carnivorous witch.

Art for Healing: Painting Your Heart Out is a book about the beginnings of an organization called "Art & Creativity for Healing" which was founded by Laurie Zagon in 2001, and the powerful impact that its programs have had on children and adults suffering from abuse, illness, grief and stress. Art & Creativity for Healing was founded with a vision that the creative process and emotional healing often intersect when words are not adequate, and pain is too deep. The organization's programs are designed to work in conjunction with other therapeutic models including traditional talk therapy augmenting the benefits of these modalities with a unique creative approach. Specifically, the "Art for Healing" methods allow participants to learn a new way of communicating through color that encourages emotional breakthroughs and further enhances the therapy process. Unlike other art programs that employ a loose format of free expression, the "Art for Healing" curriculum contains strictly guided exercises designed to elicit emotional responses.

Beddoes poses a peculiar problem for critics and scholars who wish to redress the marginal position that he occupies in the Romantic canon - a problem seemingly unique to him, and created in part by his misconception of his own strengths as a writer. An extremely good poet who, had things turned out differently, might have functioned as a missing link between Keats and Tennyson, he fatally divided his attention between verse and medicine, a discipline that by his own admission (made in the poem composed for Zoë King) served to wither his creative gift. This fission of energy was bad enough, but more damaging still was his misconception of metier, for whatever mental resources remained to Beddoes after gruelling days in the classroom he invested in writing an unstageable drama instead of in his primary gift for lyric verse. Whereas the Beddoes revival that has been gathering momentum in recent years has centred on Death's Jest-Book, the play onto which the poet directed - some might say 'misdirected' - so much of his creative energy, this study focuses wholly on his lyric and narrative verse, much of which has received short critical shrift. It follows the sequence of poems set out in the Donner edition, and focuses on their verbal richness and inventiveness as they unspool upon the page.
