(Chu) Tao-sheng stands out in history as a unique and preeminent thinker whose paradigmatic, original ideas paved the way for the advent of Chinese Buddhism. The universality of Buddha-nature, which Tao-sheng championed at the cost of excommunication, was to become a cornerstone of the Chinese Buddhist ideology. This book presents a comprehensive study of the only complete document by Tao-sheng still in existence.

As future generation information technology (FGIT) becomes specialized and fragmented, it is easy to lose sight that many topics in FGIT have common threads and, because of this, advances in one discipline may be transmitted to others. Presentation of recent results obtained in different disciplines encourages this interchange for the advancement of FGIT as a whole. Of particular interest are hybrid solutions that combine ideas taken from multiple disciplines in order to achieve something more significant than the sum of the individual parts. Through such hybrid philosophy, a new principle can be discovered, which has the propensity to propagate throughout mul- faceted disciplines. FGIT 2009 was the first mega-conference that attempted to follow the above idea of hybridization in FGIT in a form of multiple events related to particular disciplines of IT, conducted by separate scientific committees, but coordinated in order to expose the most important contributions. It included the following international conferences: Advanced Software Engineering and Its Applications (ASEA), Bio-

"Grace's prose recalls Ian Fleming at his most lean, and although the focus is on the ticking time bomb in orbit, he throws in a wealth of technical details and gadgetry to satisfy techno-thriller aficionados. This is a complex story, but Grace keeps the plot clean and streamlined, making this a brisk, enjoyable read."

—Publishers Weekly "You won't put this one down once you start it. Tom Grace is a masterful plotter. He draws you into his net and doesn't release you until the final sentence."—Clive Cussler "Tom Grace's [Fatal Orbit] had me spellbound. unearthed from the Han tombs near Changsha, Hunan Province in China in the year 1973, proved by authorities in ancient Chinese studies to be the most authentic texts of Lao Tzu so far. Late Prof. Huang, a former senior professor at Peking University, Beijing, China, has corrected a vast amount of errors resulting from textual corruption of the various prevalent versions of Lao Tzu that have been passed down to us through the ages. A result of over twelve years of painstaking research and meditation, Professor Huang has created a work that promises to be widely acclaimed and become a standard reference on the subject.

The Tao of Creative Caddying is a fictional account of a recovering alcoholic's life on the golf course. Utilizing a comic mode, various maturational issues such as moral codes, sexuality, and forgiveness are identified and explored. The novel commences with an introduction to Steven Renaldi, the main protagonist. His debut loop on the golf course is presented. Alan, Master of all caddies is also introduced. The next two chapters present Steven's first year in an all boy's high school as well as subsequent adventures on the golf course. The following three chapters introduce three caddies of distinct personality and impact on Steven. Byron, Mouth-Organ Roger, and Goofball Billy develop into integral components of Steven's developing personality. Subsequent chapters illustrate life on the golf course, a deeper look into the life of Alan, master of all caddies, and Steven's relationships with women. The novel concludes with the loss of two significant characters in Steven's life and the resulting knowledge he garners from these losses. The narrator tells his story to fellow alcoholics as a way to heal himself as well as provide a path of healing for other alcoholics. The author is 53-years-old. He possesses a BA in Psychology and an MA in Child Development. He has been employed as an compressed natural gas (CNG) and its blend with hydrogen, HCNG, and provides detailed information on the utilization of these alternative fuels in internal combustion (IC) engines. Further, it presents methods for production of these alternative fuels and explores advanced combustion techniques, such as low-temperature and dual-fuel combustion, using alternative fuels. It includes a chapter on the soot morphology of biodiesel, which focuses on the toxicity. There are also four chapters on hydrogen-fueled engines, which discuss use of hydrogen in IC engines and also provide important information on the methodologies. This book is a valuable resource for researchers and practicing engineers alike. These proceedings gather outstanding papers presented at the China SAE Congress 2020, held on Oct. 27-29, Shanghai, China. Featuring contributions mainly from China, the biggest carmaker as well as most dynamic car market in the world, the book covers a wide range of automotive-related topics and the latest technical advances in the industry. Many of the approaches in the book will help technicians to solve practical problems that affect their daily work. In addition, the book offers valuable technical
