Our Reason to Hope

Drugs and alcohol are considered the elixir of life.
How paradoxical it is that they are also the essence of death. Those who have not drunk do not know the simple pleasures of life. But those who do know that all pleasure is derived from it. A high price for a low life. In the beginning, the

However, as time passes, those reasons fade into the background and become unintelligible. If an individual was to ask me why I got into substance abuse, I might not
